

EVERGREEN PLAYERS BEGIN PLAYS

College Adds Fourteen New Faculty Members

The Loyola College day-school has added 14 new teachers to its faculty for the 1958-59 school year.

Joining the Social Science Department is Mrs. Doris Duffy Boyle, who comes to Loyola from Antigonish, Nova Scotia, where she taught for the past ten years. Rev. Joseph Burke, S.J., a predoctoral research fellow of the National Cancer Institute, will teach Biology.

Mr. William Carton, who has been with the Mercantile-Safe Deposit and Trust Co. for the past 7 years as Security Analyst, will begin his career at Loyola in the Business Department teaching Investments. To instruct in Fluid Mechanics comes Mr. Stephen Cowin, who has a diploma from the Army Engineering School.

He also has degrees of B.E.S. and M.E.S. from Johns Hopkins, and will begin his teaching career at Loyola.

Dr. Worthington Ewell, a Baltimorean, will join the Engineering Department, a subject in which he has received B.E., M.A. and Dr. Eng. degrees from Johns Hopkins. From a 1956-57 tenure as a Fulbright Scholar at the Università Degli Studi in Florence, Italy, comes Dr. John Freccero, to instruct in French.

His degree from Johns Hopkins include A.B., M.A. and Ph.D.

A native of Los Angeles, Mr. D. Richard Haggard, who will educate students in Math, has formerly taught IBM trainee courses related to computing machines. Scholastic Frederick Homann, S.J., a candidate for Ph.D. degree at Penn University, will also teach Math.

Rev. Henry Lavin, S.J., who joins the English Department from St. Joseph's College, Phila., holds degrees of A.B., M.A., Ph.D. and S.T.L.A. New Theology instructor is Rev. Daniel Lawler, S.J., who has taught at Georgetown and Villa Julie Junior College.

Joining the Business Department is Scholastic Jon O'Brien, S.J., a Magna Cum Laude Fordham graduate. To lecture in Physics comes a former Albright and Penn State teacher, Dr. Howard Peiffer.

Mr. Morgan Pritchett, Ph.D. candidate at Johns Hopkins, teaches German. Mr. Bernard Weigman, Jr., Ph.D., Notre Dame, lectures in Math and Physics.

Plans Made For Shakespearean Play

The Dramatics Society has begun its schedule for this year. The lineup includes Death of a Salesman, The Lady's Not for Burning, The Merchant of Venice and Engaged, which was presented last week in Cohn Hall. This first play had been in rehearsal since July, which explains the early date of the performance.

Previously known as the Masque and Rapier Dramatic Society, the organization is changing its name to the Evergreen Players and is writing a new constitution. Among innovations will be an associate membership for the girls who participate in the productions. The name Masque and Rapier will be retained as an honorary organization of members who have done outstanding work in Loyola dramatics.

There will be the usual production of Loyola Nite, (the school-wide talent and skit show) and participation in the Province One-Act-Play Contest. The One-Act-Play Contest is among the Jesuit Colleges in the Maryland Province Loyola, Georgetown, St. Joseph's Philadelphia, Scranton and Wheeling. This year the contest will be held in Scranton. The one-act play is yet to be decided as an original play is preferred and so far none have been submitted. Deadline for submission of manuscripts is the start of Christmas holidays.

Doctor Of Letters Degree Bestowed On Dr. Albright

Dr. William F. Albright, Professor Emeritus of Johns Hopkins University, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Letters at the Fall Honors Convocation on September 19.

The convocation followed the traditional Mass of the Holy Ghost, celebrated by the Very Rev. Vincent F. Beatty, S.J., President of Loyola College. The sermon was given by Rev. Joseph d'Inville, S.J., who spoke on the "Difference between wisdom and knowledge."

Stresses Humanities

In his concluding address to the assembly of Loyola students and faculty, Dr. Albright spoke on the place of Humanities in education, saying that, in defining Humanities, "If you shut out the intellectual humanities and religion by your use of the term, you shut out the most important part of the humanities."

He went on to state that the Arts are declining due to the "emphasis laid on the ephemeral and the novel," and on originality, meaning . . . in these fields today, what has not previously been done."

"Humanities without religion is like a body without soul" said Dr. Albright, and he concluded with "Communism, perhaps, under the Providence of God, has become the 'Sword of God', and just as Attila did, . . . is paving the way for a re-emergence of Christianity."

World Renowned

Dr. Albright has achieved eminence in the fields of Semitic languages, archaeology, and history.

Bids Accepted On Proposed Buliding

Bids were opened last August 28 for the proposed Dining-Hall-Student Union Building, to be erected where the junior parking lot is now located. It will contain a lobby, serving both the gym and the new hall itself, and will allow for the expansion of library facilities.

Included in the new building will be a student dining hall and lounge, a faculty dining room and lounge, snack bar, book store, music room, lockers, rifle range, and offices for student organizations.

Throughout the world he has been honored by universities and learned societies.

Among the special guests present were two of his former students, Father Joseph A. Fitzmyer, S.J., and Father George S. Glanzman, S.J., both now at Woodstock teaching scripture, and Dr. Albright's son, Brother Edelwald Alban, F.S.C., who teaches at La Salle College in Philadelphia.

Frosh Dance Held Tonight

The Sophomore Class will sponsor the annual Freshman Welcome Dance, to be held tonight from 8:30 P.M. until 1 A.M. As the initial dance of the year, it will begin the social life of the entire College. Tickets are priced at $3.50 per couple. Music will be supplied by the Dellonaires dance band.

Dick Prodey, chairman of the Dance Committee, says that the dance is being given full support by the sophomores, and expects it to be the "most enjoyable Frosh dance ever held."

Series On Great Books Begins Sunday On WJZ

In cooperation with Loyola College, WJZ-TV will present, Sunday, October 5, at 12:30 P.M., the first in a new series of programs entitled "Great Books in Education." In each weekly program a different book will be discussed by a panel consisting of professors from the various Baltimore colleges and universities.

Members of the panels will be engaged principally in establishing the meanings of each author in historical context, and secondly in evaluation of the principles expressed.

Subject and Panel

The subject and panel members for the first two programs will be as follows:

October 5 Plato — Republic
Dr. Albert Hammond, Johns Hopkins

Dr. Edward Kaltenbach, Loyola
Rev. G. Weigel, S.J., Woodstock

October 12 . . . Aristotle — Ethics
Dr. Elizabeth Geen, Goucher;

Dr. A. Madden, Mt. St. Agnes;
Dr. J. Rosenberg, College of N.D.M.

Some of the texts to be used by panel members of the forthcoming programs are Advancement of Learning by Francis Bacon, Emile by Jean Jacques Rousseau, and The Idea of a University by Cardinal John Henry Newman. Questions may be sent in ahead of time with a request that they be presented on the panel.

Carries On Work

Father Wise, who is a coordinator of the program, says of it, "The series of discussions on 'Great Books in Education' carries on the work done here for some years in the graduate seminar on 'Educational Classics of the Western World.' When a number of people read and discuss the same text (and they should do this to profit more from the TV program) the ability to penetrate into the author's meaning, in historical context, is much enhanced. Then one may have an informed agreement or disagreement with great minds of mankind."

This series of programs is presented with the cooperation of the faculties of Loyola's sister institutions in this region, under the public-service policy of WJZ-TV.

President's Letter

Fr. Beatty

By now, the members of the Class of 1962 have experienced the brotherly welcome which the Loyola College community has extended to you. May I take this opportunity which the editor and staff of The Greyhound have afforded me to formally extend a Loyola College welcome to you the members of the freshman class and to express my pleasure in seeing so many of the upper classmen return to complete their education.

At the Fall Honors Convocation, at which Doctor Albright so clearly described the role of humanities in education, I emphasized the need for excellent performance by Loyola College students. This performance is a blend of talent and motive, of ability fused with zeal, and I trust that you possess all of these components. To be satisfied with security, conformity, and comfort, which the masses in America seem to be striving to achieve, is an unworthy goal for men dedicated to the search for truth. I expect that your aspirations are beyond these material goals and are directed toward the highest values which mankind can rightly seek.

Sincerely in Our Lord,
Very Rev. Vincent F. Beatty, S.J.

Editorials

Welcome Back!

The long arm of tuition bills and registration notices has again reached out and gathered from the beaches, mountains, summer camps and local sweat shops the Loyola student body. As part of this flotsam the GREYHOUND staff would like to extend to all of you a hearty welcome back!

During the last three months our minds have not been completely inactive and we have reaped some lessons from our experiences. Those who had a job related to their field of study have a better idea what they wish to get from their schoolwork. Those who had a menial job are glad to return to an atmosphere which shows some respect for intelligence. And finally those who were fortunate to devote the summer to full time school or travel are more aware that knowledge is great and time short.

We also wish to extend a special welcome to those poor boys who are getting used to the idea that they are no longer those demigods the high school seniors but only college freshmen. We hope the shock will not affect your performance and you will realize that Loyola can uniquely fill your need in education with your cooperation.

We also hope that the smell of sheepskins will not so intoxicate the seniors that they lose this last opportunity to make their mark at Loyola. To all good luck and God bless you!

Deeds Not Words

Last week the Dramatic Society gave three performances of their first production "Engaged". This is the second year in a row they have had a full play ready for production within two weeks of the opening of school. They have done this by starting rehearsals weeks before the opening of school. There were good audiences at all four plays last year "Harvey", "Man Who Came To Dinner", "A Sleep Of Prisoners" and "The Cocktail Party", even though many students did not attend. A great deal of work is expended on these productions and the large off-campus audience speaks of their worth: certainly the students owe them not only congratulations but also support.

J.M.M.

A.S.O. Bouquet

The members of the Association for Student Orientation also have worked hard this summer preparing the excellent handbook distributed to the freshmen attending orientation. This organization has in two short years changed orientation from a simple tour of the campus to a well organized show of the co-curricular activities here at Loyola. The GREYHOUND on behalf of the other activities would like to thank them for their hard work and wish them much success in the future.

Freshman English

Freshman English teachers face quite a dilemma. Their students have vastly different abilities and backgrounds. Therefore, if they teach slowly, the better students get bored and lose interest. But if they move rapidly to more challenging matter, the weaker students get overwhelmed and lose interest.

To meet this dilemma, the English Department has devised a system for sectioning students according to their literary level. The plan has been inaugurated this year. Prior to the first week of class, the freshmen took an essay test, and they have been assigned their regular English sections on the basis of the results.

The instructors will give the better students more reading and creative writing; other students will be given a course in the fundamentals of writing, including a review of grammar and punctuation. Thus every student will be challenged according to his ability.

There may be one serious drawback: the tougher competition may make it harder to get a high mark in the more advanced sections. For example, an average student, who would have received a B in a lower section, might get only a D in a better section: which seems unjust.

The Head of the English Department, Mr. Francis L. Christ, has explained that this lower mark is more than compensated by the greater educational value of the tougher course. He maintains that marks are not the primary objective of schooling anyway. He's right . . . but the situation merits consideration.

Librarians Busy This Summer, Recatalogue, Add New Books

During the summer the library underwent an inventory and a minor facelifting at the hands of Mr. Charles Mehling and Miss Carol Kloiber, assistants to the Catalog Librarian, as well as Mr. Mark Gnerro and summer assistants Gary Tarbert, Ken Billeb and Paul Sherman, of Loyola, and Mary Jane Cole, of Mount Saint Agnes.

Results of the inventory showed that the total of fully cataloged volumes in all divisions of the Loyola College Library is about forty thousand. Hundreds of books discovered lost are being re-ordered. Several other changes have been made to facilitate operations. According to Mr. Gibson Paul, Assistant Librarian, all books are more accessible and accurately recorded.

The most noticeable change is the use of plastic covers on all new additions. This practice, which has been in use at the Enoch Pratt Library, will not only protect these additions but will also brighten the shelves by preserving the dust jackets. The cost of these covers will be offset by the savings in repairs and replacements.

Staff Additions

There was also a change in personnel during the summer. Miss Dorothy Coleman succeeded Mr. Zygmunt Rudnicki, who had been Catalog Librarian since 1952. Mr. Rudnicki's new position is as Librarian at the University of Wisconsin.

Miss Coleman received her M.A. from Marywood College, Scranton, and has had previous library experience, in addition to teaching experience in public and private schools.

The Kitchen Cynic

BY JIM MOLLOY

It was the second day of class, I strolled over to the library steps, that happy gathering place of students where deficiencies and notes from the dean are posted, hoping to accost one of the carefree youths who are the new freshmen.

I had no sooner reached the merry throng when one figure in particular struck my eye. It was only a glancing blow so no damage was done. He was nattily attired in a chartreuse finger length jacket and cerise trousers breaking heavily on mirror-bright oxblood brogues with inch and one-half soles.

"Excuse me," I said picking some green lint from me left eye, "but are you one of tyros at this seat of learning?"

"You talking to me, cat?" he replied polishing his finger nails.

"Yes; I am one of the upper classmen and wondered whether the freshmen . . ."

"That's the word, man; that's what they been calling us."

" . . . needed help in adjusting to their situation and circumventing regulations?"

"You feeling all right, daddyo? I don't need no help."

"Just thought as you are new here you might need some pointers on sure fire ruses to get ahead in class."

"Well they had me in front of the class yesterday but the teacher moved me back today saying something about mumblety peg."

Just then a black wooden object materialized in his hand and sprouted a triangular piece of metal about four inches long.

"It's my dress model too," he said shaving a few stray hairs from the back of his hand.

"No, I meant how to keep your scholastic standing most easily."

"Oh, you mean like marks and stuff. Hey Milt!", he called, and an anemic youth nearby made a Nijinsky like leap to our side hastily stuffing the complete works of Shakespeare in Ubeg into his left hip pocket, "Jazzbo here wants to know how I can get along in marks and stuff."

"Jonathan and I have reached an amicable agreement on mutual aid," he said shrinking into his oversize Buster Brown collar.

"Milt means that I'm set. Well I gotta go now. The track opens at 1:30," reaching in his picket for a piece of tinfoil as he swiftly picked the lock on a nearby sedan, "Be seein' you."

"Well," I said, "there is one freshman who doesn't need my help," as he drove off in my car.

Jerry Langan (right) and Charles Fitzsimmons hold the gavel which they used as Chairman and Vice-chairman respectively of the IRC Congress on Soviet Affairs held at Loyola last year. Jerry conceived the idea of the congress and organized it himself.

Versatility Describes Langan While Here

When Jerry Langan entered Loyola in 1955 after one year at St. Charles Seminary, he brought with him a knowledge of parliamentary procedure and a desire to "be active."

When Jerry Graduated in 1958, he left behind three of the stormiest and most successful years that Loyola's co-curricular activities have yet experienced.

Jerry began his career by joining the Glee Club and the Choir. He was appointed Director of the Choir at the end of his sophomore year, and served in that capacity until the Choir was dissolved the following year.

He was also active in the Sodality serving on the (Executive) Council as Vice-Prefect.

During his junior year, George Nellies appointed him acting Junior Delegate to the National Federation of Catholic College Students (NFCCS); at the end of that year the student council elected him Senior Delegate, to fill the vacancy created by George Nellies' election to the post of Regional Vice-President.

While attending the NFCCS National Congress in the summer of 1957, Jerry introduced four of the eleven policy resolutions passed. At the request of the National President Jerry delivered the address at the joint session of NFCCS and the National Newman Club Federation (NNCF).

Langan joined the International Relations Club (IRC) during his junior year and was elected president for his senior year. The IRC Congress on Soviet Affairs, held at Loyola last fall, was his idea. He executed it together with Dr. Harry Kirwin (Moderator of IRC) and Charles Fitzsimmons.

Subsequently Jerry founded the Academy of Student Orientation, became its first president and the first Editor of the Student Activities Handbook.

Besides all his co-curriculars Jerry maintained good grades and received the Whiteford Gold Medal for the best essay in history.

He is now studying on a scholarship at Georgetown University, he aims at a Ph.D. in the Diplomatic History of the United States.

As for the future he says, "If I do not follow my previous inclinations to the priesthood, I will either teach or enter the foreign service."

J. Langan Represents U.S. At International Conference

Jerome L. J. Langan (Loyola 58) recently attended the Tenth Anniversary Meeting of the International Student Movement for the United Nations (ISMUN). The meeting was held in West Berlin, August 23-31.

Jerry, who took Tom Clifton along as his secretary, represented the United States, together with three other students. The topic of the meeting was: "The Tenth Anniversary of the Declaration of Human Rights."

The purpose of the conference was to foster relations among the twenty-seven nations attending. Speeches were immediately translated by official interpreters and carried over earphones for the delegates.

Tom and Jerry took advantage of the opportunity to tour several countries of Europe while overseas. Jerry was chosen by the Board of Officers of the Collegiate Council of the United Nations (CCUN), and then Jerry chose Tom as his secretary.

The sessions were held in the British Sector of West Berlin in Wilhelm Westkamp-Haus, a Jesuit youth hostel.

Much of the discussions concerned methods of teaching foreign languages in the various countries, and Jerry was most impressed with the "lab course" method employed in Europe. Because they emphasize the conversation rather than grammar, the students are able to converse fairly well after only one year.

During a guided tour of East Berlin, Jerry observed cartoons at almost every corner depicting Eisenhower as a cruel tyrant.

As Jerry Langan (Wearing fez, in background) looks on, John Synodinos addresses the Model United Nations. Jerry was Vice-President of the Model UN. Hugh McKenna also of Loyola College has now succeeded Jerry in this position.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation has announced a new program of 1,000 fellowships. Each grant consists of $1,500 plus tuition and dependency allowances for a year of graduate study. They are to be available to students who are interested in graduate work in teaching.

These fellowships, which are to encourage undergraduates in their senior and junior years to undertake graduate work toward college teaching professions, are granted to candidates who are nominated by faculty members.

Since the deadline for 1959 graduates is October 31, 1958, any seniors majoring in the humanities, or in the social or natural sciences, and interested in the program, are directed to see Dr. Harry W. Kirwin for details as soon as possible.

Followers of Jazz and all music appreciators will be glad to hear that the Charlie Byrd Trio from Washington has been scheduled for a combined Jazz-Classical concert here on campus.

Mr. Byrd, who studied under the world famous classical guitarist, Andres Segovia, will present as his program "the history of the guitar, its development from its classical beginnings to modern-day jazz."

The trio, which is currently performing in the District, will hold its session on a Sunday in October in Xavier Lounge. Free Refreshments will be served during intermission. Ticket sale will be limited to 150. Details will be announced later.

Members of the Freshman Class

Gentlemen:

Your presence is cordially requested at THE RUGBY GAME, a contest of athletic prowess between the sophomore and freshman classes, to be held on the athletic field of Loyola College on Monday, October the fifth, at three o'clock in the afternoon. Dress will be appropriate to the occasion.

SPORTS

by Bill Lohnes, Sports Editor

A funny world is the sports world. One minute you're up, the next minute you're down. It's a quick world where an entire season's hard work and conditioning may depend on a last second basket or the final swish of a bat. There is only one object in this awesome world — to win.

It's a great feeling when you're ahead and leading the pack, reaping in the laurels, sharing the glory. But you can't be on top all the time; and when you're not, the only alternative is to take a back seat, hold back your sorrow, and play the part of a good loser.

For the past two years, Loyola has been just that — a good loser. In 1956 and '57, for the first time since their entry into the Mason-Dixon Conference, the Hounds failed to bring home a championship. Last year only the swimming team was able to capture a crown for Loyola. Always in the tourney finals, ever elusive victory managed, somehow, to slip from the Hounds grasp.

This year, however promises to be a brighter year for the Greyhounds. Experienced manpower, which in '57 was about as scarce as fans are at Washington's Griffith Stadium, seems to be abounding in all starting lineups.

Both the soccer and cross-country teams should throw added weight around the conference this season, while the basketball squad, if they continue to play with the same determination which landed them in the thick of last year's tournament battle, should be in title contention from the opening tap-off. The swimming team, which lost six men through graduation and transfer, still has a solid nucleus from which to draw its strength.

Remember Mike Zedalis?

Who was Mike Zedalis? Eight years ago big Mike was a key sparkplug for Lefty Reitz's basketball squad. He was named to the all Mason-Dixon team three years in a row. In his Senior year, Mike captained the team, had a 13 point average, and scored 364 points overall. With his teammates Mike went to the National Catholic Tournament at Denver, where he was elected to the All-Tournament team.

Where is Mike Zedalis now? With the advent of this school year, Mike has taken up head coaching duties of the Sommerville High School team in Somerville N.J.

Ken Billeb

Seeking to take up where they left off last year, the Loyola College cross-country team will vie with the Cardinals from Catholic University on Monday, October 13. The Cards had a strong team last season, and Greyhound mentor Bill McElroy expects the meet to be a close one.

The Hounds are well stocked with veterans, as they have their three top men returning from last year. These include Ken Billeb, Paul Sherman, and Stack Burton.

Sherman holds the course record, while Burton is right on his heels. Paul has covered the 3½ mile grind in 16:58, while Burton has gone the distance in 17 minutes. Billeb has also been a consistent competitor and has shown great improvement in early practice.

Intramural Applications Close Today

Nap Doherty, Director of Intramurals, requests that students obtain their entry blanks for the fall intramurals at the Athletic Office in the Gymnasium. October 3 is deadline for all entries.

Intramurals consist of fall, winter, and spring activities. Fall intramurals will consist of football, swimming, tennis singles, and horseshoes. Winter activities will consist of basketball, ping pong, and bowling. Softball and tennis doubles will be the main activities of the spring intramurals.

Nap's records show that the freshmen last year won the basketball intramurals, and placed second in softball, and football, after giving the upperclassmen a tough battle for first place. The beanie-clad men also placed teams in runner-up sports of all sports.

This will be the second year for Nap Doherty as Director of Intramurals. Last year the Loyola College Intramural Program was very successful, thanks to his hard work. More than fifty percent of the students at Loyola participated in the intramurals. Nap's only comment is that he needs more participants for this year's program. Nap has appointed all the boys on scholarship as referees. Now all he needs is your co-operation.

W.M. Is Opponent As Soccer Season Begins

The Loyola College soccer team will open its intercollegiate season today against Western Maryland on their pitch.

"I can't say we'll be outstanding," says Coach Tommy Lind, whose team will be trying to better its 2-6 record of last year, "but we shouldn't have a bad season."

Seniors Paul DiPino and Bill Hartman will co-captain this year's squad. DiPino, who was injured for most of last season, returns to his post in the goal, while Hartman in his second year on the varsity will be at center halfback.

Junior Jerry Beck, who was second team all-Mason-Dixon Conference last year, heads a line which consists of such stalwarts as Spunk DiPino, Buck Effringer, and Freshman John Bauerle, Bauerle was outstanding while at Mount St. Joe, and Lind expects great things from this youngster.

The backfield posts will be manned mainly by Wade Bowman, Charlie Brown, Ed Zepp, Tom Shultz, and Tom Jones.

Other squad members include Harry Bloom, Dave Gillis, Tom Dwyer, George Yurek, Ray Churchill, and Bill Asher, the last three being Freshmen.

The booters next game will be against Towson Teachers.

Swimming Team "Shapes Up" With Outdoor Exercise

Loyola College's swimming team has revised its training schedule. The tankmen met at the north end of the athletic field on September 22 to undergo a new type of training.

"If a man is better physically conditioned, generally he is going to be able to do a better job at any sport," states Bill Klarner, swimming coach at Loyola.

Klarner has adopted a "shape up" schedule. It is held on Mondays. Lasting a half hour it consists of track and calisthenics.

Previously, Loyola's aquamen have had only one meet before Christmas. This year they have five. This, coupled with the loss of six tankmen, has forced Klarner to use new methods for conditioning his squad.

Enter Easy Contest

Beginning with this issue, the Greyhound sports department will conduct a monthly guessing contest. The object of the contest is to guess the score of all games to played in the following month. However, a scoring system has been devised whereby you don't have to get any of the scores exactly correct to win. The man who is the fewest points out of the way will win. A prize worth about $5.00, will be awarded to the winner.

The contest is open to all students. Just fill in the scores which you think will be the probable scores of the games listed for the month of October in the schedule box below. Then tear out the entry and give it to any man on the sports staff or turn it in to someone in the Greyhound office, which is located in the Dell building. The names of the sports staff members may be found in the masthead of this paper. Make sure he writes both the time and date of your entry on the back of the schedule box.

This contest will close on October 7 at 3:00 P.M. Decision of the judges is final. Scores of last year's games are posted in the gym to allow you to get some idea of how to score the games.

Running With The Hounds

by Bob Fleishman

The recent soccer rule set up by the National Collegiate Athletic Association cutting the penalty area in front of the goal is an interesting one.

Briefly, the old 44 yards by 18 yards rectangle has been replaced by a semi-circle 18 yards from the midpoint of the goal line. This new regulation is to be used only by colleges and high schools, but the professional teams and those of other countries will stick to the old way.

This naturally means that a boy, who, after playing 6-8 years of soccer in high school and college, wants to try out for the Olympics, will have to adjust himself to the old style of play.

Backers of this change list several points in its defense: (1) The penalty area is now much narrower, allowing attackers to get closer to the goal and causing rougher play. (2) The goalkeeper can't go out from the sides as far as formerly. (3) More fouls will be called; therefore, more scoring. (4) Because of the smaller area, officials probably will be more stringent in calling personal fouls.

C.Y.O. members from the Baltimore area sign up for the C.Y.O. tennis tournament, which was held recently on the Loyola courts. Jim Lacy, former Greyhound basketball star, watches over the proceedings.
